COURSE DESCRIPTION

- TED Conversations will give students a chance to practice using English to speak about current events and topics on various fields and subjects. The class will consist of two sections. 1st, we will study the language and phrases used in a TED presentation by native English speakers. We will perform exercises and lessons based on the language that can become a part of your own English vocabulary and skills. Students can expect to learn at least 5 new phrases used by native speakers based on the TED presentation. The second section will consist of a conversation about the topic at hand. The instructor will have prepared several questions for the students, giving them a unique chance to practice English conversations about topics they may not be familiar with.
6/23 TUESDAY
WRITING - AUSTIN GIVENS

• 16:00-17:30 PM

Applying for a Job Overseas: Module 1 – The Perfect Resume/CV

This course is designed to help students or people who may have to apply for an international job in their future. Students will find a position to apply for in their field, and we will study the materials required to get that job. In module 1, we will focus on improving our resumes, as well as analyzing the language used in many job applications. Further modules will include writing cover letters and online interview practice.
6/23 TUESDAY
DISCUSSION - JEAN GRAY

• 19:00-20:30 PM

Communicating About COVID-19

Discuss English language interviews given by Korean Foreign Minister Kyung-wha Kang on the topic of Korea's response to COVID-19. We will discuss our response to the interviews as well as analyze the effectiveness of the communication.
6/24 WEDNESDAY
ENGLISH TOPIC DISCUSSION - AUSTIN GIVENS

• 7:00-8:30 AM
  “Coffee Culture around the World”

• 12:00-13:30 PM
  “Voices of Korean-American Poetry”

• 19:00-20:30 PM
  “Science Fiction in Movies”
This course is meant to offer students a chance to practice spontaneous English conversations in topics they may not be familiar with or have a chance to discuss in their day to day lives. Using comprehensible input from various sources, the topics are diverse and specific enough to encourage a deeper level of conversation. Students need to only have some small interest in the subject. The professor will prepare discussion exercises and questions regarding the topic. The goal of this course is to give students a chance to speak on deeper subjects at length.
6/25 THURSDAY
PUBLIC SPEAKING - AUSTIN GIVENS

• 16:00-17:30 PM

Public Speaking Practice: Sharing a Story about an Object

For this English Daily lesson, students will be asked to bring an object to class that is important to them in some way. The first 30 minutes of class will include instruction, tips, and exercises in public speaking. Students will then be given 10 minutes to prepare a short speech to describe their object in an interesting way. For further practice and development, spontaneous questions about the object will be allowed by other students and the professor. The goal of this course is to improve confidence in public speaking while allowing students a chance to practice in a low-stress and comfortable environment.
6/25 THURSDAY
WRITING – JEAN GRAY

• 19:00-20:30 PM

  Topic Sentences & Concluding Sentences

  In this course, we will review the details of what is required to write effective topic and concluding sentences. We will analyze effective and ineffective examples of both types of sentences. Students should be prepared to write several examples of each on several different topics. Topics and context will be provided by the instructor. Students will receive immediate feedback.
Cooking with English: Midwestern American Chili Soup

Welcome to English cooking class! For this course, the professor will demonstrate a classic American Mid-Western recipe, from start to finish. An ingredient list will be provided, so students can cook along if they would like. Or, they can simply take notes to try the recipe later. The professor will ask and answer questions for the students as the cooking class unfolds. Students can expect to learn cooking and food vocabulary, improve their listening skills, and get direct feedback from a native English speaker. Students should expect this course to be fun, engaging, and a little bit humorous. Bon Appetit!
6/29 MONDAY
5 MINUTES PRESENTATION - AUSTIN GIVENS

• 11:30-13:00 PM
  “Presentation on a Place you have Traveled”

• 14:30-16:00 PM
  “Presentation on International Food”
In this course, students will prepare a very simple and informal 5 minuet presentation in class. They will then receive direct feedback on their presentation and public speaking skills from the professor and other students. The first section of the class will begin with simple instruction about the task, and a demonstration by the professor. Students will then have time, in class, to prepare a public speech based on an informal and simple topic. The final portion of the class will give students the opportunity to practice their presentation skills, as well as participate in engaging conversations about various topics.
Applying for a Job Overseas: Module 2 – Writing a Cover Letter/Letter of Motivation

In this course, students will learn tips and practice writing a cover letter for applying to an international job overseas. We will begin the course by looking at real-life job applications online, and analyze the language and requirements that they ask of applicants. We will discuss strategies for completing the application. We will then take a close look at cover letters, and some tips for writing them. Students can expect to get feedback in class for their writing from both instructors and students.
6/30 TUESDAY
TEDTALK – JEAN GRAY

• 19:00-20:30

"How to get better at the things you care about" by Eduardo Briceño

In this class, we will listen to the TedTalk titled "How to get better at the things you care about." After listening we will discuss the concepts presented as well as thinking together about how we might apply them to our own lives.
